

WashU Olin's Flex MBA:

Advancing Health Business Careers

An impactful program for BJC professionals that combines MBA fundamentals with health-focused coursework.

The part-time Flex MBA from WashU Olin Business School is specifically designed for working professionals looking to expand their career opportunities. Delivered on campus or online, the program is grounded in Olin's robust MBA fundamentals and includes a wide range of coursework that examines the complexities and nuances prevalent in today's health industry.

Program Highlights

Flexible Formats: On campus, online, and hybrid options	Dynamic Learning: Live cases, sector deep dives, experiential exercises	Integrated Curriculum: Core business fundamentals plus health-specific courses
Expert Faculty: Respected, research-active faculty, including health business experts	Broad Electives: Diverse options beyond health specialization	Fast Completion: Finish in about 2 years (7 semesters)

WashU Olin's Business of Health: Your MBA Advantage

WashU Olin's Business of Health initiative exists to engage and empower business leaders poised to improve the well-being of individuals and societies through health products, services, and community partnerships. By combining Olin's proven strength in preparing principled leaders with the expertise of WashU's Schools of Medicine and Public Health, the Business of Health initiative is inherently interdisciplinary in its coursework, collaborations, and impact.

Students in the Flex MBA program become part of WashU Olin's extended network of alumni and business professionals, many of whom are health leaders in St. Louis and beyond. The business school regularly gathers members of this extensive health network to connect and engage in conversations that advance health business practices and improve outcomes.

25% of your Flex MBA coursework can be health-related

2025-2026 Health-Focused Courses

- Drugs & Devices
- Olin Grand Rounds
- Health Insurance in the United States
- Healthcare Management
- Health Economics & Policy

Learn more about Olin's Business of Health offerings at olin.washu.edu/health

"Business engaging with public health and public health engaging with business is frankly an idea whose time has long come. And I'm delighted that we're actually moving forward with that idea at WashU."

DEAN SANDRO GALEA, WASHU'S SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

"I'm excited about the students who are entering the business school interested in health and am eager to show them what we have to offer."

PATRICK AGUILAR, MANAGING DIRECTOR OF HEALTH

BJC Scholarship Program

BJC employees may be eligible for tuition support through WashU Olin's BJC Scholarship Program. Qualifying students can receive up to a 50% scholarship. Additionally, students can apply within BJC to receive their annual tuition benefit.

Reach out to us at OlinGradAdmissions@wustl.edu for more information.

olin.washu.edu/flex

 WashU Olin Business